

GCH3 Garbage – 7 July 2013 – Dogs Bollocks – Bottle Lake Forest end of Bower Ave

A sunny Sunday morning and an off-road location meant there was a good turnout for the run. The pack of hashers, which included Dagey's niece from Wellington, her husband, and their one and half children, gathered in the car park waiting for any late-comers to show up. Just after 11.15am, the pack set off with runners heading west, while the walkers ventured into the forest to look for trail.

Trail led into the forest, then around in a loop, to where there were two checks in close proximity but with no trail in between. This was all a bit too perplexing for a Sunday morning. The throng of walkers spent much time debating where trail may or may not be found, until late-comers Workashirka, Vas.E, WoWo, Pulled-Out and Just Noze (with Tijmen and baby, Just-Out, in tow) caught up to them. These late-comers informed the walkers to head up the hill to the rotunda, and trail was picked up again. After losing trail a few more times, and a bit of back-tracking, the PS was eventually located. Dogs Bollocks was patiently waiting with the booze and his "special" bread.

The pack set off again, with an elite group of walkers shortcutting back to the PS at the car park, who were quickly joined by Navi, Nice But and a dog they had stolen earlier that day. Flapper and Workashirka had to rely on Max the dog's keen sense of smell to guide them back to the beer. As the mob assembled around the piss-wagon, Gremmie decided to entertain the crowd by vomiting not once, but twice, next to the vehicle. To avoid the pools of vomit, Dogs decided to manoeuvre his truck around a 90-point turn, almost running Wank Plank's dog, Shrek, over in the process. Both babies were not impressed by any of these shenanigans so pretended to be asleep. SIF and Jammit were nowhere to be seen, so we assumed they were having a lengthy shag in the forest. Fines were awarded, and then we went back to Dogs Bollocks' abode for hearty servings of chicken soup, tomato soup, hot dogs and ultra-death hot chilli sauce.
